

Activity 1: A teen blog post – over to you

- 1  Go to the Huffington Post Teen-Blogs website and scan the blog entries. In small groups, choose one that you find particularly interesting and read the text.
- 2 Now it's your turn to decide how to present the text to the rest of the class. Think about what questions you could ask, and what kind of tasks would be interesting to do. You should include one or two comprehension questions to make sure that the others understand what 'your' blog post is about. If you need some ideas, look at the tasks you have been given in this topic.
- 3 Once you have read the other groups' blog posts and done the tasks, discuss what you have done and what was good or not so good about it.

